

About AAPL

Founded in 2013, the Association des Artistes Plasticiens du Luxembourg aims to promote dialogue and exchange between artists and to defend the material and moral rights and interests of the profession. Its actions intend to facilitate the understanding, the application, the modification and the dissemination of legislative measures, standards, regulations and any other decisions issued by public authorities.

Since August 2018, the association has been benefiting from an agreement with the Ministry of Culture.

AAPL's missions

- ▶ professionalisation of the artist : the AAPL offers support to artists working full or part-time, as well as to those starting out in the profession. The AAPL provides its members with the tools they need to prepare, manage and pursue a professional activity. This includes specialised training. Its activities encourage the pooling of skills and the exchange of expertise.

- ▶ sectoral representativity : the AAPL aims to bring together a critical mass of active professionals who share common interests and face the same challenges.

- ▶ activism : the AAPL defends and works for the interests of professional artists, in particular to improve their working conditions. This involves raising awareness among those involved in the sector, as well as people working in the public and private sectors, cultural institutions as well as the general public.

- ▶ workspaces : the AAPL manages workspaces (studios and project rooms) at Verlorenkost, which are available to artists, art groups and associations at moderate prices.
